ABOUT

Eleanor Lowden is a contemporary Canadian painter whose work celebrates the beauty, rhythm, and connection found in everyday life. Working primarily in acrylic, Lowden transforms ordinary moments into vibrant, expressive compositions, drawing inspiration from bustling city streets, quiet neighbourhoods, flourishing gardens, and the simple interactions that connect us. Through luminous colour, playful pattern, and an enduring optimism, her paintings invite viewers to discover joy in the familiar and appreciate the stories woven into daily experience.

Characterized by bold colour relationships, layered surfaces, and distinctive mark-making, Lowden's work balances expressive spontaneity with thoughtful composition. Repetitive forms, stencilled textures, and rhythmic patterns create depth and movement, encouraging viewers to engage with each painting from both a distance and up close. Whether depicting figures, landscapes, or urban scenes, her work reflects a lifelong fascination with people and place, celebrating the richness of ordinary life through a contemporary and deeply personal visual language.

After studying Fine Arts at the University of Western Ontario and continuing her education at the Ontario College of Art and the Alberta College of Art, Lowden established a successful career exhibiting throughout Canada. Now living and working from her studio in Toronto, Ontario, she continues to create paintings that resonate through their warmth, energy, and enduring celebration of colour, community, and everyday moments.
