ABOUT

Michaela Hoppe is a contemporary Canadian painter whose work captures the beauty of everyday moments through a unique blend of landscape and figurative painting. Working primarily in oil, Hoppe creates richly layered compositions inspired by the places she has travelled, the people she has encountered, and the quiet experiences that shape our connection to the world around us. Her paintings celebrate the extraordinary found within the familiar, inviting viewers to pause and reflect on memories, relationships, and a shared sense of place.

Balancing expressive brushwork with vibrant colour and thoughtful composition, Hoppe's paintings weave together narrative and atmosphere to create works that feel both deeply personal and universally relatable. From expansive prairie skies and boreal forests to bustling streets and tranquil coastlines, each painting offers a glimpse into a fleeting moment while leaving space for viewers to bring their own stories and experiences to the work. Her distinctive visual language is rooted in observation, yet elevated by a sense of wonder and optimism that has become a hallmark of her practice.

Now living and working in Biggar, Saskatchewan, Hoppe continues to paint landscapes and figurative works that celebrate Canada's diverse environments and the enduring power of storytelling through art. Her work has been exhibited across Canada and is held in public and private collections, reflecting a practice that continues to resonate with collectors through its warmth, authenticity, and timeless appreciation of place.
