LIVES & WORKS IN SASKATCHEWAN

ABOUT

Nicki Ault is a Saskatchewan painter whose luminous landscape works reflect a deep emotional connection to the natural world. Inspired by the Boreal forest, northern lakes, prairie skies, and wild grasslands of Saskatchewan, Ault captures shifting light and atmosphere through richly expressive oil paintings that evoke both memory and place.

Although her artistic influences began early—through family stories, paintings, and drawing—Ault’s creative journey fully emerged later in life while raising her two sons. In 2009, she launched her blog Nicki Ault: Me, Myself and Who Am I? as a way to stay connected to her practice and the wider art community. That same year marked her first solo exhibition and the beginning of her studio career within Saskatoon’s artist collectives.

A largely self-taught artist, Ault has continued to refine her practice through years of dedicated exploration and study. Her work has been featured in exhibitions and artist initiatives across Canada, including an international exhibition celebrating the centenary of International Women’s Day in 2011. In 2016, she became a juried member of the Saskatchewan Craft Council and has since received recognition through award-winning exhibitions and a feature in Galleries West magazine.

Today, Ault paints full-time from her Saskatoon studio, creating evocative works that celebrate the beauty, emotion, and ever-changing light of the Canadian landscape.
